WORK AT TUSKEGEE

MR. W. J. BUTTON TELLS HOW BOOKER T. WASHINGTON FOUNDED AND DEVELOPED A GREAT SCHOOL

Lecturing at the Congregational Church Sunday night, on the work of Booker T. Washington, the negro educator, who founded and conducted the wonderful negro college at Tuskeegee, Mr. W. J. Button said that Tuskeegee was Booker T. Washington's greatest monument. His books had brought him fame as an author, works such as "Up From Slavery," "Working With the Hands," "The Story of the Negro," and "Character Building." Born a slave this humble negro rose to a position of influence and usefulness. Like Lincoln, he was prepared when the opportunity came and rose to sublime heights in the service of his fellowmen.

When the slaves were freed in 1865 a nameless negro boy went to work in a coal mine. His love of books procured for him the name of "booker," which he afterward adopted as his name. Tuskeegee Institute had its birth in an actual need. It came in answer to a cry for help. The negro was sunk in degradation as the result of slavery. Booker T. Washington attacked this question and suggested educating the negro. Tuskeegee Institute was the sanest and most potent solution of this problem. Believing that education would finally solve the race problem the negro educator founded Tuskeegee college to give the colored race a chance to acquire a sound literary and moral and industrial training.

The Tuskeegee idea of education, the lecturer said, meant training. It began in the home, where the intelligence received helpful stimulus and encouragement; thence it proceeded to the school where the training was continued academically and industrially. The "inner vision" was preserved. Here is exemplified the principle inculcated by Ruskin. All the children are "taught the laws of honor, the habit of truth, the virtue of humility and the happiness of love." To this was added the spirit of industry, the duty of economy and the wisdom of possession—a perfect system of ethics.

At Tuskeegee, the lecturer said, examples of truth, righteousness and usefulness were not made in a day. Tuskeegee did not attempt the impossible. It made no claim to removing by education the dangers and difficulties of life. It did, however, train the will to meet bravely the problems and vicissitudes of life. Here is manifested an appreciation of Huxley's famous saying: "The most valuable result of education is the ability to make yourself do the thing you ought to do, when it ought to be done, whether you like to do it or not."

The lecturer told of how farming was taught on the Tuskeegee farms and how all over the state the colored farmer felt the uplift of the Institute. Instruction in mechanical industries did much to make the negro race independent. Under all the attention Booker T .Washington received he remained unspoiled, said the lecturer. He was no ordinary man. His character is stamped on the Institute at Tuskeegee. The spirit of the place lives on though he is dead. Booker T. Washington has photographed himself on the lives of more people than any other American of his time.

BARACAS VS. LONG BEACH

One of the most interesting football games ever witnessed in San Fernando valley was played Saturday by the Presbyterian Baracas and the Log Beach High School, at the Third street school grounds. Though much the lighter team the Glendale boys held their weightier opponents to a 7-7 tie. Long Beach scored in the first five minutes. In the second quarter Jackson caught a punt in midfield and carried the ball to the 20-yard line. Bidwell took the ball on a long end run to within seven yards of the goal line. Glazier carried six yards farther and Wilson plunged through the center for a touchdown. Smith kicked the goal. Ths score was now 7-7. The rest of the game was fought all over the field, with many sensational plays but no scores on either side. Following was the Glendale lineup: Eccles, r.e; Bidwell, r.t.; Kants, r.g.; Grist, r.g.; Carmichael, r.g.; Shea, c.; Barager, l.g.; Robertshaw, l.t.; Sharpe, l.e.; Glazier, s.; Jackson, r.h.; Smith, l.h.; Wilson, f.

OUTLOOK IN LIBRARY

CHANGES AND IMPROVEMENTS IN SYSTEM OF HANDLING BOOKS FOR PUBLIC

Since the rearrangement of the shelves in the public library there have been many comments on the advantages of the new system. Mrs. Danford, the librarian, speaking to a representative of The Glendale Evening News, said: "I find that the additional shelves have attracted many parties' attention to books which they have not noticed before.

"We have also been collecting books bearing on child culture—on the training, education and general development of children. The Parent-Teacher Federation has been taking an interest in this class of literature and I and my assistants have made up and given them a list of books bearing on this subject.

"It might be well to let the public know that after this all reference magazines will be kept unbound for six months; but after that time they will be bound and kept for reference. It is believed that this will greatly accommodate those who are in the habit of consulting the modern magazines. We have also changed the system of giving out magazines to members of the library. The magazines are no longer given in addition to books. They must be taken out now on the regular cards. It was found that under the old system readers took out magazines and as there was no absolute rule about bringing them back, kept them out for unreasonable periods. That is all changed now.

"It will be interesting to teachers and others interested in educational matters to know that we are in the habit of making out lists of books that deal with national holidays. Just now we have prepared a list of books dealing with "Thanksgiving." These books will be found very useful for those who are devising Thanksgiving parties and specially for those who are to give Thanksgiving recitations. Similar lists will be made up for Christmas. Those who are anxious to make use of such lists should make application in time for the books they want as the demand is frequently greater than the supply.

"We have still in hand a number of bulletins of the books added to the library since July 1 and those who desire copies should apply at the library desk for them."

Following is the list of child-training books, recently compiled:

Letters to a Mother, Blow.
How to Tell Stories to Children, Bryant.
Froebel, Bowen.
Mottoes and Commentaries of Froebel's Mother Play, Blow.
Care of Children, Cotton.

TIMELY TOPICS

DEBATING, DEATH NOTICES, LOCAL TEMPERANCE DOINGS

GLENDALE WINS IN DEBATING

The official results of the debates last Friday night in the Southwestern Debating League were as follows:

School	Debates Won	Judges' Decisions
Pasadena	2	5
Glendale	2	5
Lincoln	2	4
Santa Monica	1	3
Pomona	1	3
Huntington Park	1	4
Huntington Beach	1	3
Santa Ana	0	2
Manual Arts	0	1

All schools debated the subject of "Subsidies for the American Merchant Marine." Samuel Durand and Howard Stickney for Glendale put up a fine winning debate at Santa Monica against two experienced speakers. In the practice debate at Glendale against Lincoln Frank Bridgeford and Joseph Maier made an excellent showing but won only one judge out of three. However, as South Pasadena had defaulted, Glendale had three decisions and one debate credited on the official score.

The subject chosen for the debates of January 21 is "National Defense." Glendale will send a team to Huntington Beach, and Huntington Park sends a team to Glendale. At the meeting in Los Angeles Saturday, where these arrangements were made, Glendale was represented by Mr. Root and Samuel Durand.

M. E. BARACA MEETING

Funeral services will be held Tuesday morning at the Church of the Holy Family. Interment in Forest Lawn cemetery. Funeral arrangements are in charge of the Scovern-Letton-Frey Undertaking company.

W. C. T. U. MEETING

At the meeting of the local W. C. T. U. society, held Friday at the home of Mrs. Paul, Orange street, the attendance was large and the interest deep. The reading of Scripture by Mrs. P. A. C. Moore was particularly pleasing. She read that wonderful chapter in Galatians where Paul shows that whatsoever a man sows that he of necessity reaps.

Mrs. Smart, the president, introduced the speaker of the day, Mrs. Martha Law, formerly of Wisconsin. Mrs. Smart informed the gathering that Mrs. Law, as president of the federation, held rule over 26 W. C. T. U. organizations. Mrs. Law spoke of the attitude of the union toward the moving picture show, saying that she welcomed the picture theater as a foe to the saloon. Prohibition, she said, was no longer a question but a certainty. It might take twenty years to make a state "dry" after it had been voted "dry," but that would not keep back prohibition. The real evil of alcohol as a beverage is better understood now than ever. If prohibition does not prohibit, she asked, why do the brewers so vigorously fight it?

The lecturer went on to state that there was no faltering in the temperance forces. The question was a very simple matter. Either the temperance forces or the saloon must go down. The temperance army, strong in the faith of Christ, believed that it would be no long time before the evil traffic would be vanquished. One of America's greatest men, Benjamin Franklin, said: ,'Temperance puts wood on the fire, meat in the barrel, flour in the tub, money in the purse, credit in the country, clothes on the children, intelligence in the brain and spirit in the constitution."

Mrs. Clara Buell was admitted as a member of the society. After a delightfully pleasant social session the meeting adjourned.

The J. W. Imlers, of 1416 Lomita avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. R. Z. Imler of the same address, will motor to Highland Park on Thanksgiving day to dine with Mrs. R. Z. Lmler's brother, Reverend and Mrs. B. D. Cheney, while Prof. H. B. Cheney and family will arrive from El Monte.

WORK OF RED CROSS

MISS PENN, FORMERLY OF GLENDALE, WRITES OF WORK AMONG THE BELGIAN WOUNDED

Miss Penn, who formerly was a resident in Glendale, has, through her friend, Miss Ina Whitaker of Ninth street, sent The Glendale Evening News several extracts of letters that throw some light on the work now being done by the British Red Cross women in aid of the Belgians. These extracts are rather long to publish in their entirety. One and all they manifest a profound sense of gratitude to those who are aiding them.

The writers of these letters are Belgian soldiers, who had been wounded and recovered enough to do duty again in the trenches. They show marked appreciation of the small attentions shown them by the English Red Cross ladies and are full of a spirit of quiet courage that is typical of the brave little country that resisted the might of Germany.

"I received your kind letters and the newspapers," says one of these letters. "One of our comrades translated the newspapers into French for us, as we lay in the trenches. They are of great interest. My comrade Maurice is ill. He is in the hospital. He suffers badly from rheumatism, which he contracted in the trenches of the Yser. We Belgian soldiers in all circumstances wish to help each other.

"Though we have been through great battles we have never lost our 'morale' and we are certain that victory will finally rest with the allies. We are all now rejoicing in our new khaki uniforms, which are comfortable and are exactly the same as those of the British.

"I thank you sincerely for the beautiful flowers. It will be a pleasure to us to send you a group picture of ourselves after Maurice returns from the hospital." The rest of the letters breathe the same spirit of quiet acceptance of conditions and gratitude for small favors shown the writers. They also show the unspeakably severe conditions under which these soldiers have been fighting. "It is pretty hot here, under fire," says another letter. "We are in the environs of Dixmude. We never receive news of our families." The Red Cross is heroically struggling with the gigantic task of helping these unfortunate people and their families in every possible way.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

Under the auspices of the Woman's Missionary Society, a thank offering service was held Sunday morning, in the Congregational Churrch. The service was largely attended. Mrs. E. M. Findley gave an interesting and instructive address. The Chinese children whom she had with her added interest to her story. The playing of the orchestra was meritorious. After service the visitors and members of the local society had lunch. Next Sunday evening the Mission playlet will be repeated. The pastor will give a pulpit editorial on "How a Business Man Broke Into the Church," which was recently published in "The Ladies' Home Journal." Mr. Willisford will take a decided issue with the author of the article.

JUNIOR ATHLETES HONORED

Elegant in appointment was the 6:30 o'clock dinner presided over by nine charming girls at the parental home of Miss Ernestine Lyon, at 1422 Ivy street, on Friday evening, when members of the Junior class basket and baseball teams were honored guests.

The large "T" shaped table at which the eighteen young people sat was beautifully done with low crystal bowls and marigolds and fern fronds. Orange bows of ribbon marking places for the young ladies and black for the "heroes" present, these making up the Junior class colors. Huge yellow chrysanthemums and foliage decked the rooms used after the meal for dancing and cards. Hostesses for the evening were Miss Ernestine Lyon, Miss Esther Schremp, Miss Marjorie Imler, Miss Katherine Phillips, Miss Katherine Renshaw, Miss Jeanette McLennon, Miss Florence Heacock, Miss Margaret Boucher and Miss Juanita Emery; members of teams, Messrs, Carlton West, Miller Fischel, Harry Glazier, Edward Seay, Howard McGillis, Edward Heacock, Lehan Crandall, Olin Wilson and Dan Hagan.

Mr. J. R. Davies and little daughter Marion, of Portland, Oregon, will leave Glendale today, after a pleasant visit with friends, the Walter N. Stamps, at 1306 Lomita avenue.

TEACHING CONSIDERATION FOR ANIMALS

Nothing marks the wide difference between real education and culture and the imitation that has not penetrated even skin deep than the manner in which an individual regards and treats the lower animals. There was probably as much regard for animals in pre-Christian times as there is in our own times. Each country and religious cult had its sacred animal and the halo of sanctity thus cast about them prevented them from being badly treated. The cat in Egypt was sacred, the monkey in India is sacred to the present day. Geese were sacred in Rome and in other cities.

Had it not been for the excellent work done by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals the woes inflicted by evil-minded men and women on the lower creation in this Christian era would have far passed any limit of tolerance permissible in so-called "heathen" times.

Hence it is not astonishing to learn that in Glendale there is often an amount of unnecessary cruelty to animals that needs a strong hand to suppress it. It is reported to The Glendale Evening News that cases of what is probably thoughtless cruelty have been occurring recently in various quarters of the city. Kittens have been thrown out to starve and in one case four of those wretched animals were locked in a semi-open box and exposed to a cruel death by hunger. In this case the harrowing details go on to state that when all of the little animals had died save one that one had become so emaciated that it was able to creep through the open slats of the box. In this case the ill-treated animal was conveyed to a charitable home but even there survived its cruel treatment only four days.

Naturally a city or household cannot submit to be overrun with cats. A certain proportion of those animals is enough, but when it comes to disposing of them it should be done scientifically and not with cruelty. Kittens should be drowned or chloroformed before their eyes are open and as a matter of fact, if they are not to be reared should be disposed of a few hours after their birth.

That any children or grown-up persons should wilfully maltreat the lower animals would seem strange were it not authenticated on credible testimony. What is one to think of homes where such sentiments could grow up. It is in the home that real gentleness and kindness are learned. A child will readily absorb the sentiment of those in the home. Where that sentiment is cruel and where animals are treated with cruelty nothing else can be expected from the children. Let all children be taught in their homes the love of animals and there will be no further reports of wanton cruelty to helpless creatures.

CENSORSHIP OF NEWSPAPERS

Up till recently there has been no real censorship of newspapers in Anglo-Saxon countries. There have been some prosecutions and fining of newspapers in the United States, but nothing approaching the wholesale suppression of journals that has prevailed in Germany and Austria for many years past. Even in France, especially under the reigns of the two Napoleons, it was common for a newspaper to have a "posse comitatus" enter and confiscate every sheet of paper, burn the printed copies, break up the forms and then admit the mob to wreck the building.

In Germany it has become common, since the present reign began, to note prosecutions of newspapers for "lese majeste"—speaking evil of the kaiser or some princely dignitary. As a matter of fact most of the non-official and even some of the more independent of the semi-official newspapers have become so much subjects of prosecutions for daring to speak their minds that they have been in the habit of hiring and keeping a "prison editor" whose duty it has been to go to jail whenever the courts should impose a prison sentence on the editor of the paper. In the case of "Vorwaerts," the Socialist paper, the prison editors have spent a total of nearly fifteen years in jail, since the establishment of that journal.

Readers of history will remember that even England had her troubles with a publisher and the cry "Wilkes and Liberty" resounded down the halls of English history as a warning to governments concerning the interference with the rights of citizens to criticise freely events of their time. It is therefore rather singular to note that the "Globe," one of the oldest newspapers in England, was suppressed the other day.

That is indeed a "volte-face" for England. The Globe has hitherto been one of the most conservative papers in that country. It has enjoyed a large circulation among city men and when the evening trains rushed out countryward at night you would see more Globes in the hands of the commuters than any other paper. Though conservative in politics, the Globe has been always noted for its tendency toward the securing of sensational coups—what in this country are called "beats."

In this way the Globe published the secret agreement between Britain and Russia several days before the congress of Berlin opned. This was considered good newspaper work, but very ill-judged and tactless from an international and even from a national standpoint. In like manner the Globe published just now a statement to the effect that Field Marshal Lord Kitchener had resigned the office of secretary of state for war, because of the maneuvers and machinations of certain politicians. The paper kept on insisting on this in face of government denials and retribution fell on it in the shape of an inspector of police who summarily closed the doors of the paper and put an end to its audacious activities.

Thus one of the oldest of English newspapers, born Jan. 1, 1803, is now fretting in silence as a punishment for too much talk. It will probably be granted leave to start again and will in all probability be more careful than in the past. Still its suspension is a sidelight on the altered conditions in England brought about by the war.

AT THE FIRST M. E. CHURCH

Taking as his subject "Rags in Heaven," the parable of Dives and Lazarus, the Rev. B. Dudley Snudden said: "Bacon, the famous essayist, once said 'Death is like taking a step into the dark.' That is both true and false." He then instanced the dying moments of several pronounced skeptics. The deaths of these men, he said, were indeed leaps into the dark. In contrast the triumphant end of a righteous man was the entrance into a blessed life, begun here on earth. He denounced the artificial standards of the world, that deny recognition to merit and virtue, if clothed in rags, but welcome the moral leper with open arms, provided he has wealth at his disposal. A false standard, he said, measured success by money; Heaven measured success by character building.

On the divine principle Lazarus was a success. He was a beggar in the estimation of Dives but a millionaire in the sight of God. Dives was a rich man in his own estimation and in the estimation of the world; but a bankrupt in the sight of God.

"Death," said the preacher, does not destroy personality. The parable shows the actors speaking each in his own personality through change in regard to possession and positions."

There was a large attendance, including an unusually great number of young people.

MANY ANIMAL PERFORMERS

Sixty lions, tigers, leopards, pumas and jaguars are performers with the Al G. Barnes wild animal circus. Twenty-four of the largest, full-grown, man-eating lions are used in one act. This lion act is sensational to a remarkable degree and the largest groups of these great cats ever successfully presented before the public. They are well trained and are handled in the act by one trainer. Their value is placed at $50,000.

A troupe of thirty bears are a part of the wild animal actor section. American and Russian grizzlies, cinnamon, sable, sloth, polar and black bears comprise the species. Their acting is principally along comedy lines. Big Bill, the gigantic wrestling grizzly, is the star of the lot.

A herd of elephants have a star act with the show. A complete farce comedy and some difficult posing feats are done by these ponderous brutes.

Augmenting the wild animal features are many others presented with domestic animals. Dogs, goats and the Barnes challenge horses and ponies are prominently displayed. Over 600 animal actors are carried by the show and sixty-five big acts produced.

A continuous line of wholesome nonsense is provided by forty clown elephants, bears, mules, dogs, ponies and monkies.

The glittering, mile-long parade is presented at 10:30. Performance hours are 2 and 8 p. m. The show's date for Glendale is Tuesday, November 23.

WEAR $100,000 WORTH OF GOWNS

There are one hundred beautiful girls up at the Ritz-Carlton hotel, New York, today, glass-eyed dames with no feet, and every single mother's daughter of them is wearing a $1000 dream of a late winter or early spring Paris gown.

These girls are cold, painted beauties of solid wax. About and among them flutters Mme. Roman Fernandez, "the best dressed woman in Paris," the "fashion queen" and wife of the former Mexican ambassador to France. She is staging this display of last gasps in Paris gowns to get money for French relief work among children made destitute by the war. She is not only the ultimate syllable in Paris style, but a society leader as well.

The hundred gowns, which will remain absolute secrets until the opening of the fete with a grand ball toight, include creations by Poiret, Worth, Premet, Doucet, Paquin, Lanvin, Jenny, Cheruit and Cal'ot Soeurs.

Tonight the gowns will be donned by Paris mannequins, who will wear them in the playlet M. Roger Boutet de Monvel, the author-artist, has written for Mme. Fernandez so she can get more money for the French war orphans.

This really is the official introduction to America of the new Paris styles, endorsed and aided by the French artists. The show will be presented, matinee and evening, every day for the next week.

AT PEPPER TREE INN

A delightful surprise was the high noon birthday luncheon tended Mrs. A. L. Wyckoff of La Crosse, Wisconsin, by her daughter, Mrs. F. H. Spence of the same city, at the Pepper Tree Inn on Saturday, at which hostelry Mrs. Spence is domiciled during her stay here. Beside the honoree and hostess covers were for eight other guests, all relatives from Los Angeles, upon a daintily arranged table in the center of which rested a crystal basket containing violets, Cecil Bruner roses, carnations and fern sprays. The remaining hours of the afternoon were spent in the home of another daughter, Mrs. N. C. Kelly, 1117 Melrose avenue, at whose home Mrs. Wyckoff will spend the entire winter.

FOR HOME GARDENS

The following letter has been received by the president of the Glendale Garden Society from Professor L. C. Schufeldt, director of agriculture and horticulture for the L. A. schools. More than 30,000 school children are working under the professor's guidance.

Mrs. Nanno Woods,
President Glendale Garden Society.
Dear Madam:

Your letter of Nov. 19 is at hand. It will be a pleasure to meet with the leaders of Glendale to formulate educational policies concerning the subject of Home Gardening. I will endeavor to come to Glendale on the evening of Dec. 2.

I hope you will be able to have present several members of your school board, your supervising principal, Miss White and Prof. Houdyshel. A round-table discussion which results in definite construction plans is what appeals to me. I shall be disappointed if we cannot have the authorities present who will make it possible to secure immediate action.

Respectfully yours,
C. L. SCHUFELDT,
Director of Agriculture and Horticulture L. A. Schools.

It is not a small thing that Mr. Schufeldt should be willing to come to Glendale, to give his time, his experience and his expert guidance, that Glendale may be benefitted. An appeal is hereby made to all parents, all real estate men, all persons of prominence, all those interested in education and in nature study, to be present at this meeting, Thursday, Dec. 2, at the Chamber of Commerce rooms, at 8 o'clock p. m.

Help in every way. Co-operate with the Garden Society and with Professor Schufeldt; encourage our own local educators and teachers; offer prizes—many of you can afford a few dollars either to enthuse the children of the city to a wholesome occupation, or to boost Glendale. This movement, if taken seriously, and carried through efficiently, will put Glendale in the leading class as one of the pioneers of Home Gardening movements.

TROPICO

The members of the "Mother's Club" of the Acacia St. school of Tropico, and more especially the officers, wish to take this way to thank the many outsiders who so courteously assisted in making their bazaar a grand success. Because it was to procure a piano for the little tots, every one seemed to be more than anxious to do any thing in their special line. A decorator from Los Angeles contributed his services and nearly a hundred flags made the two rooms resplendent and gay. Beeman and Hendee were instrumental in getting the doll for the ladies, and that was raffled off at ten cents a chance. And special praise must be given the chairman of the bazaar committee, Mrs. Strong, and the president, Mrs. Todd, whose combined efforts and many hours of hard labor have resulted in netting the club about seventy dollars.

The Knights Templar lodge is already spreading abroad the spirit of peace on earth, good will to men. Many are purchasing tickets for the Christmas ball, knowing that the proceeds are to be used in purchasing Christmas toys for the poor children of Glendale.

Dr. Raymond Ludden, the well-known osteopathist, who has been located at 114 S. Brand boulevard during the past year, and has built up a satisfactory practice there, has moved his office and residence to 345 S. Orange street, corner of Broadway.

Tomorrow wi'l be circus day in Glendale—the big fun day of the year for young and old. The Barnes Wild Animal Circus will be here for two performances.

The Barnes circus is remembered by Glendale people as a show quite different from the ordinary old-time circus for the reason that the entire entertainment presented is given by trained animals—a troupe of wild and domestic animal actors numbering over 600.

Instead of human acrobats, jugglers, tumblers and riders giving the entertainment, trained animals of nearly every known kind are cast as the performers. Elephants, camels, zebras, kangaroos, lions, tigers, leopards, bears, monkeys and all species of domestic animals appear as actors on the Barnes program.

It is hard to imagine more thrilling scenes than the big wild animal acts presented. Twenty-four jungle-bred, full-grown, man-eating African lions are shown in one act, handled by one trainer. Young women trainers exhibit large groups of tigers, leopards and bears.

The fun part of the show has been well taken care of. Fifty funny elephants, dogs, ponies, pigs, monkeys, bears and mules guarantee an almost continuous laugh.

The new-feature free parade is given at 10:30. Performance hours are 2 and 8 p. m., doors being opened one hour earlier.

There's to be a series of big free-to-every-one acts on the show grounds before the main performances begin. Ample time is afforded patrons after the parade to go home for dinner and then get to the grounds for the free features. Circus grounds at 6th and Everett.

SUBMARINE BASES FOR U. S.

Many submarine bases along the U. S. coasts will be one of the defense program features to be submitted by Navy Secretary Daniels to congress. Daniels says the experimental base at New London has been proved a success. "The strain of service on submarine crews is so great that it is necessary to provide a place to rest up after trips," said Mr. Daniels. "Quiet quarters should be provided where the men may recuperate while the vessels are resupplied and repaired."

The new submarine M-1, just launched, is the first so-called U. S. fleet submarine, her sister ship being the Schley. These vessels are expected to accompany the battle fleet on cruises of any length. The new naval program calls for fifteen of the M type vessels. It is proposed to build a large number of smaller coast defense submarines. Several of these small subs, however, have recently run the 2000 miles between San Francisco and Honolulu.

OF VIOLET VELVET

One particularly beautiful Redfern gown of violet velvet had a skirt that was cut so that it hung in points almost touching the ground on each side, while the front and back were quite short. This skirt was lined with rose pink taffetas, and it was heavily weighted at the bottom so that it hung very gracefully, being of course very wide at the edge. The corsage consisted of velvet arranged almost like a sash, with a point in front and crossing behind, and not mounting above the armholes. Then the shoulders were covered with pink chiffon and to this were added frills of violet tulle gathered into narrow bands of velvet, one shaped with a long point hanging down the arm, and a shorter one standing upright just at the shoulder, thus forming a pretty short sleeve. The crowning touch was given by a huge orchid placed slightly at one side of the bodice.

The people who are paid to be good never earn a very big salary.

INCREASE OF KNOWLEDGE AND WHAT DO THESE THINGS MEAN?

1. What does the prophecy of Daniel promise in reference to the increase of knowledge in the time of the end? Dan. 12:4.

2. What kind of knowledge is here referred to? Doubtless (1) religious knowledge, especially respecting the contents of the Book of Daniel; and (2) a corresponding scientific knowledge.

3. Has there been an increase in knowledge sufficiently notable to indicate that we have reached the time of the end? There has.

Nicholas Belwara in 1429 paid $225 for a New Testament and was arraigned for teaching a neighbor and his wife to study it. People felt grateful in those days for a single chapter, gospel or epistle. Since the beginning of this century there has been a wonderful increase of Bible knowledge.

In 1799 the London Religious Tract Society was established.

May 8, 1816, the American Bible Society was organized in New York. A Testament can now be bought for twenty-five cents.

In 1825 the American Tract Society was organized.

"The American Bible Society, since its organization, has issued nearly fifty million volumes, representing about seventy-five different languages and dialects. These Bibles have penetrated everywhere, China and Japan not excepted."

The British and Foreign Bible society has issued about one hundred million volumes since its first establishment, representing about two hundred and fifty different dialects.

4. When was the first religious newspaper issued? In the year 1808.

Note—Sept. 1, 1808, Elias Smith, at Portsmouth, New Hampshire, started "The Herald of Gospel Liberty," the first religious paper ever published. Millions of copies of religious papers are now going forth weekly to enlighten the world.

Scientific Knowledge

5. With the increase of scriptural knowledge has there been a corresponding advance in the arts and sciences? There has.

Note—The following table from "The New American Cyclopedia," shows the number of useful and what we now consider indispensable inventions, the most of which have been discovered during the century just closed.

1798—The first balloon.
1798—Gas, to light a manufacturing house in Birmingham, Eng.
1800—Cast-iron plow, first used in America in New York City.
1803—Steel pen by Mr. Wise, Eng.
1807—Steamboat by Robert Fulton.
1811—Steam printing press printed the London Times.
1818—Revolver, Elisha S. Collier.
1823—Go'd pen, John P. Hawkins, American.
1825—Railroad cars.
1825—Furnace for heating house, Professor Johnson, Philadelphia.
1825—Kerosene first used for lighting.
1829—Lucifer match, John Walker, England.
1830—Steam fire engine, Ericsson, Swedish-American.
1833—Reaper and mower, Obed Hussey, Cincinnati, Ohio.
1837—Telegraph, Prof. Morse.
Electrotype, Spencer and Jacobi.

6. Why should the world have stood for six thousand years, and then these inventions all come up in so short a time? The only reason that can be assigned is that the providence of God so ordered it and gave it as an unmistakable sign of the approaching end.

7. What invention of world-wide utility was to be seen in the time of God's preparation for the end? Nahum 2:3-5. Referring to electric cars, automobiles, etc.

CHINESE BOUDOIR ROBE

A lovely boudoir robe is made from padded china silk, quilted in the Japanese fashion, but in a scroll design that is most charming. Instead of being embroidered as the Japanese robes are, it has an overcoat of finest organdy that comes to the waist line only, while the silk robe is full length. The organdy coat is made exquisite with daintiest valenciennes lace inserted and edging it.

"Yes," replied Miss Cayenne, "everbody seems willing to take a chance on being talked about for the sake of hearing what she says about the others."
